

plans that had been presented here today is that prudence had to be the underlying concern of all of us. If there was a condition present which would harm or endanger life or limb, then we should take care of it. And, to that extent, the college and the committee and the administration of the university authorized the immediate shoring of that building to prevent the possibility of harm or injury to the occupants. I would, therefore, I think very much oppose the amendment which has been offered here this morning and call your attention again to the possibility of prudence and quality of design by a bridge which collapsed in Tennessee about three weeks ago, a concrete structure. And I'm sure that if we had had consultants look at that bridge and the design of that bridge and the components that went into it, at eight-thirty that night, there would have been just as conflicting opinions as we have here today on the floor. However, at something like eight-forty that evening the bridge did collapse with the loss of at least seven lives in that instance. So prudence, as I indicated to you, was the keynote of our decision in making the...taking the action that we did. Thank you, Mr. President.
